

GOULD SQUABBLE NEAR SETTLEMENT

Wife of the Young Millionaire Blames Public For Disagreement.

Believed Reconciliation Will Be Effected Within Few Days.

NEW YORK, April 18.—"I love my husband, but there are some things at times that appear unbearable. If they would only leave us alone, if Mr. Gould and I were alone upon a desert island, we would be the happiest persons in the world."

Just before sending a telegram from the office in the Hotel Manhattan today, Mrs. Frank Gould made the foregoing statement regarding her domestic troubles. Her friends believe that her attitude indicates an early reconciliation and an end of the suit for separation which was begun Wednesday last by the serving of a summons upon Mr. Gould.

Mrs. Gould appeared in the gayest of spirits. She had received a telegram at noon that was said to have been from her husband. As soon as it was received she ordered her automobile and started for a telegraph office to send an answer.

Holds Several Conferences. Earlier in the day several meetings took place that were taken by friends of the family to indicate that arrangements for ending the suit for separation were under way. Mrs. Gould was with her mother, Mrs. Kelly, for three hours in Mrs. Gould's automobile. They read all the daily papers and conversed earnestly.

As they returned from their drive, Mrs. Kelly said:

"Everything regarding Mrs. Gould's affairs will be fixed up all right. I cannot say when or how, as I do not feel privileged to discuss private affairs."

While Mrs. Gould and her mother were in conference, Thomas H. Kelly, Mrs. Gould's uncle, who controls the Kelly estate, had a long talk with George Taylor, the lawyer who on Friday accompanied Mr. Gould to the train which he took for the South.

Mr. Kelly has control of Mrs. Gould's private fortune. Following her marriage he is said to have made large investments in Gould securities, and is now said to be actively working for a reconciliation between his niece and Mr. Gould. After Mr. Kelly left Mr. Taylor he attempted to get into communication with Mr. Gould's secretary, but up to a late hour this evening had been unable to do so.

Complaint Not Served.

It was learned today that Mrs. Gould's complaint had not been put into legal form yet, and no copy has been served upon Mr. Gould. A brief summons was drawn up, and this was the paper served upon him in the Hotel Plaza last Wednesday.

The notes from which the complaint will be drawn in case of a reconciliation is not expected to indicate that Mrs. Gould will charge "cruel and unusual treatment," as shown not by actual violence, but by acts of petty jealousy on the part of her millionaire husband.

In all society's discussion of the case today no stories were heard indicating that either the husband or wife had any serious cause for bringing any legal action.

Mrs. Gould is said to have expressed sympathy for Mrs. Howard Gould and Mme. Anna Gould in their matrimonial troubles. Friends of the family say that Mrs. Gould sent notes to the two, extending sympathy to them. Whenever Mrs. Gould appeared in society she has always been speedily surrounded by a group of admirers, and her attractiveness is said to have made her husband jealous.

On the other hand, acquaintances of Mrs. Gould are said to have been in the habit of carrying to her all the petty gossip they happened to hear regarding Mr. Gould. The result has been that several times Mr. and Mrs. Gould's troubles have gained publicity, but never before has either husband or wife taken any legal action.

Those in closest touch with the husband say the other members of the Gould family are inclined to side with their relative, considering that he had just ground for complaint at the letters Mrs. Gould is reported to have written to Mme. Anna Gould at the time her brothers and sisters were trying to persuade her to reject the suit of Prince Helle de Sagan.

Too Much Tatling. Others better acquainted with the wife speak bitterly of the "tale-bearing acquaintances" who angered Gould against her.

It is generally agreed, indeed, that there was too much of this tattling on both sides, and it is this class of so-called friends who are in a fair way to be dropped permanently from the couple's calling list when the expected reconciliation is effected.

No attempt is made to conceal the fact that there have been many quarrels of late, and that the last was by far the most serious of the series.

Gould Is at Hot Springs But Remains in His Room

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 18.—Frank Jay Gould arrived here tonight, engaged rooms at the Hot Springs Hotel, went to them at once, and has not since shown himself in the hotel lobby. Even his meals have been ordered sent to his apartments, but it is understood he has arranged for a guide through the nearby hills. The young multi-millionaire asked, on his way to the hotel, concerning the New York guests, and seemed pleased to hear that they are few. He was quiet and seemed dejected.

His apartments were engaged for a week.

Richards Divorce Proceedings Attract Widespread Attention

MRS. GEORGE RICHARDS,

Wife of the Marine Corps Officer, Whose Divorce Suit Has Created Great Interest in Washington.

"Wife in Name Only" Prepares for Legal Battle.

Great interest is centered in the divorce proceedings instituted by Lieutenant Colonel Richards, of the Marine Corps, against his beautiful young wife because she "has refused to become a wife in fact as well as name." Mrs. Richards, formerly Miss Frances Mills, lived in Washington for many years during her father's service in the Senate, and is now boarding in the house which Senator Mills sold upon his retirement from Congress.

Although the divorce proceedings were instituted only a few days ago in Iron-ton, Ohio, it has been known in army and navy circles in Washington for several months that Lieutenant Colonel Richards contemplated taking such a step. Acquaintances of the couple have been aware of the uncongeniality since a short time after the wedding nine

WHIPPED OUT OF TOWN, TEACHER WANTS $30,000

ATLANTA, Ga., April 18.—Prof. J. H. Bailey, former principal of the high school at Cannon, Ga., who was horse-whipped and driven from his school February 7 last by a company of women, has filed suit in the United States court in Atlanta for $35,000 damages against twenty-nine citizens of Cannon.

The story sets forth that Prof. Bailey was drawing a salary of $1,500 a year, when suddenly one morning he was set upon by the defendants with horsewhips, beat, bruised, and wounded, ejected from the building and forced to give up the keys. Furthermore, the bill alleges, he was so threatened with further violence that he had to leave the State and seek a home in Chattanooga, Tenn., where he now resides.

While the whipping was in progress, it is alleged, a great crowd of people, among them 30 school children, was present, a fact which greatly aggravated the humiliating situation.

THE MERCENARY WILLIE.

Craig Wadsworth, the best cotton leader in America, admitted at a dinner in New York that men were colder and more mercenary than women.

"It is born in us," said Mr. Wadsworth sadly.

"When I was a boy I had a little friend named Willie. He appeared one day with a fine apple."

"I'll give you this apple," he said to a little girl, "for twenty kisses."

"The little girl was amazed. This was not at all like Willie. Nevertheless she consented."

"Shut your eyes," said Willie. "Sit down here and shut your eyes. And mind, if you open them, the bargain is off."

The little girl obeyed, and slowly very slowly, she kissed him on the cheek, on the lips, one, two, three, four, a long pause—five, six—another long pause—seven—eight, nine, ten—intolerable pause.

"Oh, Willie, hurry!"

"I'm not Willie."

"The little girl opened her eyes in astonishment, and drew back her pretty mouth from the advancing lips of a strange boy, a very common, shabby sort of boy, whom she had never seen before."

"Why, where's Willie?" she cried.

"He's down the street," was the reply, "sellin' yer kisses for two apples apiece. Better shet yer eyes again. The next three boys is terrible ugly."

HOW SAD.

Dramatic Author—Mr. Manager, I venture to ask whether my three-act play has been accepted?

Manager—Well, you see, the three members of the reading committee have gone through it, and they have come to the conclusion that one act will have to be struck out.

Author—Oh, there is no difficulty about that; it is not so bad, after all.

Manager—No; but unfortunately, each of the members wants to strike out a different act.—Tatler.

W. J. BRYAN DENIES NEW YORK DEAL

Has Not Seen State Leaders Nor Promised Cabinet Position.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., April 18.—William J. Bryan was asked today whether he had any engagement to meet William J. Connors, chairman of the Democratic State committee, or Charles P. Murphy, and said he had not and did not expect to meet them now or in the future.

Borough President Coler, of Brooklyn, boarded Mr. Bryan's train at Saratoga. He was accompanied by William A. Doyle, of Brooklyn, one of the anti-McCarran district leaders. Prior to Mr. Coler's appearance, Mr. Bryan was asked:

"Has either Mr. Connors or Mr. Murphy made any demands upon you for the placing of Lewis S. Nixon in a Cabinet position, if you are nominated by the Denver convention, or has there been any attempt made at such a demand?"

To this, Mr. Bryan dictated the following reply:

"No. Neither Mr. Murphy nor Mr. Connors, nor any one speaking for either of them, nor any one else, has made me such a proposition, or any other proposition, on that, or any other subject."

Mr. Bryan leaves tomorrow morning for Utica, where he is to speak in the afternoon before the Y. M. C. A. In the evening he will address an audience at Little Falls. On Monday he goes to New York city. He speaks at a mass meeting in the Bronx Monday night and attends a press club dinner Tuesday night. In New York city he will be joined by Mrs. Bryan and their daughter.

Governor Fort of New Jersey will entertain Mr. Bryan in Trenton next Wednesday, after which the Nebraska expects to start back for Lincoln, Neb.

O'DELL BROKERAGE CO. IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 18.—Attorney Thomas Cogan was today appointed receiver of the O'Dell Brokerage Company by Judge Spiegel, of the superior court. This action followed the filing of a suit by James M. Scott, who claims to own 300 shares in the company. Scott states that the company is indebted to him in the sum of $7,300.

In the petition Scott states that the O'Dell Brokerage Company was incorporated November 1, 1907. The company's liabilities are estimated at $150,000, mostly borrowed money. The assets total less than $5,000.

The concern was started by the late William J. O'Dell, and during his lifetime conducted one of the biggest "bucket shop" businesses in the country. His successors became swamped in reckless speculation, and were wrecked by a bull market.

HUNT CLUB FRIGHTENED BY FARMER'S SHOTGUN

NEW YORK, April 18.—John Robertson broke up a Meadowbrook Hunt Club fox chase with a shotgun today, gave the sportsmen the fright of their lives, and captured a silk hat which he says he will wear to church for Easter services.

Robertson owns a farm from which he recently warned the hunters. The fox led right across his premises, and the hunters failed to notice the red flag he had planted to mark his boundaries. The farmer saw them coming, seized his shotgun, and drew up a line of battle across his pasture. The fox chasers were almost upon him before they saw the preparations for their reception. Then they broke for the nearest fence. Robertson started in pursuit in such a hurry that he fell, and the gun went off with a bang like a howitzer.

Sure that he had fired intentionally, the hunters took the hurdle in blue ribbon style, the hounds went one way, and fox another. Somebody dropped the hat in the excitement, and did not stop to pick it up.

AWARDED $12,500 DAMAGES;
LOST EYES FROM VARNISH

CINCINNATI, April 18.—A jury in Judge Spiegel's court today returned a verdict awarding Joseph Frank $12,500 damages in an action against the Herancourt Brewing Company for the loss of both eyes. Frank sued for $50,000 because he lost his eyesight while he was varnishing the inside of beer casks with varnish in which wood alcohol was an ingredient. The case was previously tried by Judge Hosea, who took the case away from the jury, ordering them to bring a verdict for the defendant on the ground that contributory negligence had been shown.

WISE OLD NOAH.

A Sunday school teacher in Bryn Mawr was questioning her class about some prominent men of the Old Testament. "Now, Henry, can you tell me who was the wisest man in the Bible?" she asked.

"Noah," Henry answered promptly.

"You don't mean Noah; you mean Solomon, don't you?"

"No, ma'am, I mean Noah."

"What makes you think that Noah was the wisest man?"

"Well," said Henry, "my papa says a man like Solomon, with 999 wives and 800 porcupines, is a blamed old fool, while Noah knew enough to get in out of the wet when it began to rain."—Exchange.

EXTRADITION IS RATIFIED WITH SMALLEST REPUBLIC

In ratifying for the second time the extradition treaty with San Marino, the United States Senate yesterday saved from embarrassment the oldest and the smallest republic in the world. That treaty, which is similar to the extradition treaties with other countries, was negotiated in January 1906, and was promptly ratified by the Senate March 20 of the same year.

An amendment was adopted declining extradition in cases where the amount involved was less than $300, or 1,000 francs. When that was submitted to the San Marino government, protest was made that to secure ratification of the treaty it would be necessary to call a special election of the whole people, and the Marinese did not feel like going to the expense for so small a matter. So the treaty was allowed to remain inoperative until this session of the American Congress, when Secretary of State Root brought the matter to the attention of the Senate and induced it to again ratify the treaty, this time without the amendment.

It is a matter of congratulatory comment among Senators, especially those who are members of the Foreign Relations Committee, that Secretary of State Root takes so great a personal interest in the affairs of his department. It is not satisfied with the mere negotiation of a treaty, but desires to see it made operative. To effect this he is always ready to meet with the committee and explain the points of the different conventions.

This frank course has had the effect of disposing promptly of objections which if formally made might have seriously delayed ratification of the treaties. In this respect Secretary Root has differed widely from his predecessors in office.

PRINTERS' UNION TO NAME OFFICERS

Important Nominations to Be Made at Meeting Today.

Columbia Typographical Union, No. 161, will hold an important meeting at Typographical Temple this afternoon. Candidates to fill the offices of the local union for the next term, and delegates to the annual convention of the International Typographical Union, will be nominated.

There are three candidates in the field for president of Columbia Union, and a strenuous campaign is said to be in prospect. Those who will be nominated for the presidency are William Brockwell and Frank A. Kidd, of the Government Printing Office, and Frank S. Lerch, of the "down town" contingent. A large field of candidates for the four positions as delegate will be nominated.

One question of considerable importance that is to be brought up is the employment of keyboard operators in the Government Printing Office who are not printers, and an effort will be made to fix the status of these employees.

There is also talk of passing resolutions commending the President for appointing a union printer to the position of Public Printer, which he did in naming John S. Leech to fill the vacancy occasioned by the retirement of Charles A. Stilling.

An effort will also be made this afternoon to amend the by-laws of Columbia Union so the present arrangement of allowing the Government Printing Office printers to name three out of the four delegates to the international convention will be changed to allow an even division of the delegates between the printers employed by the Government and those employed by private concerns.

WOES OF LEAP YEAR; GIRL MIXED BUGGIES

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., April 18.—Leap year has made a lot of trouble for two local belles, and this is how it occurred. It seems that the girls were on a committee on dishes in preparation for a well Leap Year affair at the club, and were in a quandary as to the best and quickest means of collecting the necessary chinaware, when they espied one of their young men's friends, and promptly asked him for the loan of his rig.

Of course, he did not refuse, and took the girls to get his horse and carriage, which was standing under the shed of the Presbyterian Church.

When the girls reached the shed they picked out the best rig, which they presumed belonged to their friend, and drove away. There must have been an unusual number of dishes to collect, for the balm of the day had its effect, for the girls were away a long time, possibly having gone for a good drive.

Upon their return to the church shed, they found an angry stranger, who had been chasing up and down the town in search of his missing rig, and who demanded an explanation as the girls drove under the shed.

They, however, were equal to the occasion, and by a generous use of their sweetest smiles soon made matters right.

The trouble did not cease there, though, for at the dance, when refreshments were served, a shortage of spoons was noticed. It was found afterward that in the excitement of the return to the church shed the girls had forgotten to take the bundle of spoons from the carriage, and it was not until the day after the dance that the spoons were returned by the rig's owner to the two girls.

"No more leap year dances for us," said those young ladies.

THE RIVALS.

"So the plaintiff's counsel tried to pump you today, eh?" said Lawyer Dumbley.

"Yes, it was Lawyer Sharpe; but I told him you were looking after my interests," said the defendant.

"What did he say then?"

"Asked me why I didn't engage a lawyer."—Exchange.

FAMOUS FIGHTER GOES TO HIS REST

Admiral Balch, of Farragut Coterie, Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

Tomorrow morning there will be buried from the little chapel of the naval academy at Annapolis the body of the last of that famous coterie of sea fighters of which Farragut stood at the head, Rear Admiral George Beall Balch, U. S. N., retired.

Although his home was in Baltimore the old naval officer requested, when he saw that the curtain of death was closing upon him, that he be buried at the old place he loved so well and where he learned the art of ocean warfare and to which he returned in later years as superintendent. He died Thursday at Raleigh, N. C., where he had gone for his health. His end came from an attack of pneumonia, which carried the old officer off quickly.

Rear Admiral Balch was one of the old-timers who gave to the navy of the United States its reputation as a fighting navy, a navy full of grit, though small in number, of its ships, and he was one of the few of the old-timers who was able to keep pace with the rapid development of the navy from a fleet of wooden ships armed with smooth bore cannon to a magnificent array of steel battleships.

Although bred to the good old wooden ships, he was not one of the few old-timers who held aloof from the idea of iron vessels of war, and he always advocated a big navy, a navy that would present a formidable front to aggressors and maintain the prestige of the United States on every ocean.

He participated in four wars, including the Mexican and civil wars, and he was with the famous expedition headed by Commodore Perry which opened up the ports of Japan to the commerce of the world. He was probably the last survivor of that memorable expedition.

Admiral Balch was born in East Tennessee in 1821.
